MEET THE STAFF

KATHLEEN

Kathleen Christnagel an industrial hygienist plays a key role at Triterra by identifying and mitigating environmental hazards to ensure safe and compliant construction, renovation, and demolition projects. Her expertise includes pre-demolition and pre-renovation hazardous material surveys, abatement air monitoring, lead-based paint inspections, and indoor air quality and mold investigations. Kathleen graduated from Alma College with a Bachelor of Science in Biology in December 2021. During her time at Alma, she served as a research assistant in the Environmental Science department, focusing on Environmental Toxicology. Guided by Triterra's core values, Kathleen also has personal principles that drive her: loyalty, courage, curiosity, and honesty. One of Kathleen's favorite parts of working at Triterra is the amazing team, particularly the Industrial Hygiene group. The company's positive and supportive environment fosters both professional and personal growth. Kathleen also appreciates the opportunity to travel to various exciting locations across the state. Additionally, she values the strong relationships she builds with clients, working alongside them to achieve project goals while prioritizing safety and compliance. Outside of work, Kathleen's sense of adventure continues. She enjoys skiing, especially out west where the scenic beauty is unparalleled. She's an avid traveler, a fan of Formula One racing, and loves attending concerts. Above all, she cherishes spending quality time with friends and family!
